

Biographical Sketch

Michele Moody-Adams

Michele Moody-Adams is Vice-Provost for Undergraduate Education at Cornell. Professor Moody-Adams is a moral and political philosopher who does research and teaching on a variety of issues in ethical theory, political philosophy, practical ethics, and the philosophy of law. She has published widely on such topics as moral relativism and moral objectivity, economic and social justice, affirmative action and multiculturalism, and the moral implications of reproductive technologies. She is also a professor in the Cornell Philosophy Department, as well as the Director and Hutchinson Professor of Ethics and Public Life.

1 August 2005